Pursuant to the directives of paper No. 13 (filed 7/21/03) claim 21 has been amended. Claims 20-21 remain pending.

Applicants arguments filed 7/21/03 have been considered and found not persuasive.

Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. §112 second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 21, fifth line from last, the following is recited: "p is 1 or 2". In claim 21, second-to-last line, the following is recited: "P is 1 or 4". First, there is a conflict between the two definitions, and second, there is no variable "P" (in the structural formula) in which the "P" is uppercase.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C §102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this action.

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102(b) as being anticipated by Klinger (USP 5,399,570).

-3-

Serial No. 09/903,813 Art Unit 1653

As indicated previously, Klinger discloses (col 13, line 58) the following compound:

Sar-Asp(OBz)-3,3-diphenylpropylamide

This corresponds to the substitutent variables (of claim 20) as follows:

F' = hydrogen;

G = substituted aralkyl;

B = methyl;

X = hydrogen

In the response filed 7/21/03, it is argued that a 2,2-diphenylethyl group does not fall within the scope of the term "substituted aralkyl". It is also argued that the term at issue does not fall within the scope of the term "aralkyl" wherein the term "aralkyl" is not qualified as being further substituted. Whatever the merits of this latter argument, it is unpersuasive, since claim 20 permits G to be substituted aralkyl, and it is to this embodiment that this ground of rejection is directed. As to the question of whether a 2,2-diphenylethyl group falls within the scope of the term "substituted aralkyl", it is maintained that the 2,2-diphenylethyl group does qualify. Certainly, a phenethyl group per se is an aralkyl group; when substitution of this group with a phenyl group occurs, the result is a 2,2-diphenylethyl group. The term "substituted aralkyl" means that one begins with an aralkyl group, and then substitutes one of the hydrogen atoms with another substituent. Certainly, the 2,2diphenylethyl group meets this test. The response filed 7/21/03 also asserts, without evidence or explanation, that when the term "substituted" is used, it can only be applied to an aryl group or to a cycloalkyl group. The logic of such a notion is unclear. There is no prohibition recognized in the field of organic chemistry against substituting an alkyl group with another moiety. Claim 20 recites that it is the aralkyl group that is substituted; claim 20 does not specify that when the aralkyl group is to be substituted that substitutions on the alkyl portion are excluded.

Next, it is argued that the compound of Klinger is not specifically disclosed in the instant application; however, the claim nevertheless encompasses it.

Next, it is argued that Klinger does not explain how to synthesize the compound that is the basis of this rejection. However, the claims are not drawn to a method of making compounds, but to compounds per se. Accordingly, the method of synthesizing the compound is not at issue. It is also argued that the fact that the compound of Klinger is merely a synthetic intermediate, rather than an "end product" supports applicants' assertion that the reference is not anticipatory. However, this is an "intended use" argument. The intended use of a compound disclosed in a reference does not have to be the same as that asserted by an applicant in order for the rejection to be proper. It is also asserted that the designation used by Klinger is confusing; the following is also stated:

"the fact that the combination would occur at the location which can therefore be reasonably interpreted as a reactive hydrazine"

What exactly this phrase is intended to mean is unclear. However, the response filed 1/7/03 attempted to argue that one could infer that the compound Sar-Asp(OBz)-3,3-diphenylpropylamide is really a hydrazine. However, the compound Sar-Asp(OBz)-3,3-diphenylpropylamide is not a hydrazine. This matter was discussed at some length in the Office action mailed 3/20/03. The arguments presented therein are incorporated herein by reference.

It remains the case that the compound disclosed by Klinger is encompassed by claim 20; the rejection is maintained.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a). The practice of automatically extending the shortened statutory period an additional month upon filing of a timely first response to a final rejection has been discontinued by the Office. See 1021 TMOG 35.

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR RESPONSE TO THIS FINAL ACTION IS SET TO EXPIRE THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THIS ACTION. IN THE EVENT A FIRST RESPONSE IS FILED WITHIN TWO MONTHS OF THE MAILING DATE OF THIS FINAL ACTION AND THE ADVISORY ACTION IS NOT MAILED UNTIL AFTER THE END OF THE THREE MONTH SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD, THEN THE SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD WILL EXPIRE ON THE DATE THE ADVISORY ACTION IS MAILED AND ANY EXTENSION FEE PURSUANT TO 37 CFR 1.136(a) WILL BE CALCULATED FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THE ADVISORY ACTION. IN NO EVENT WILL THE STATUTORY PERIOD FOR RESPONSE EXPIRE LATER THAN SIX MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THIS FINAL ACTION.
